3 visions 1 city

The "gat cube | price of photography" is a open call organized by the hotel Gat Point Charlie (hotel chain Gat Rooms) to support new international photography talents.

The competition is framed within the project "berlin berlin berlin | 3 visions 1 city", a collective exhibition that will take place in the Spanish Embassy in Berlin and takes the "Arcade Book" by Walter Benjamin as a starting point.

Benjamin, an intellectual from Berlin who arrives in a foreign country, portraits progressively through subjective visions the metropolis of his time, Paris. In the exhibition, Berlin is the city protagonist. This city is the subject of different visions, depending on who is looking. It will be a home to some, a foreign place to others and a stop-by place for other more.

There are three categories to participate in:

Category 1 #gatberliner: this is the view of the person that has been born/raised in the city of Berlin, a true Berliner. Or whoever feels like one!

Category 2 #gattraveller: this is the view of the person that is in the city for a short period of time (a tourist, someone that comes for a business trip, a punctual appointment, etc.)

Category 3 #gatgreeted: this is the view of the person that has moved to the city of Berlin for an indeterminate period of time.

This open call is for anyone that has an interest in participating. No restrictions will be applied (nationality, age, career...).

And remember, we would like to be able to appreciate any of these aspects:

Either you send us your vision as someone belonging to one of the categories explained above or you send us work picturing people that belong to any of the categories.
